

DAVID CHANG BIO

DAVID CHANG is the chef and founder of Momofuku, which includes restaurants in New York City, Washington D.C., Sydney, Toronto, Las Vegas, and Los Angeles; a casual chicken spot (Fuku); and a bakery (Milk Bar), established by award-winning pastry chef Christina Tosi.

Since opening Momofuku Noodle Bar in New York City in 2004, David has been honored as a Food & Wine "Best New Chef," Bon Appétit "Chef of the Year," and he has won five James Beard Foundation awards including "Outstanding Chef" and "Best Chef New York City." David has been recognized as a TIME 100 honoree, was named GQ's "Man of the Year," and has appeared on Fortune's "40 Under 40," and Esquire's list of the "most influential people of the 21st century."

Additional accolades have been awarded to individual Momofuku restaurants: Momofuku Ko, which opened in 2008, won the "Best New Restaurant" James Beard Award; has been awarded two Michelin stars, which it has retained since 2009; and is featured on the S.Pellegrino World's Best Restaurants list. Ssäm Bar and Seiōbo are also on the S.Pellegrino World's Best Restaurant list. For a complete list of Momofuku's honors, please reference the "Awards + Accolades" list.

David's cookbook, Momofuku, is a New York Times best seller. David founded Majordomo Media in 2018, with which he launched "The Dave Chang Show" podcast in partnership with The Ringer. Additionally, he collaborated with Academy Award-winning director, Morgan Neville, on a Netflix original documentary series, "Ugly Delicious."
